

MONICA HAND

Postman

I am a postman
I saddle my horse in the middle of the night ride with bundles of mail through the forest like a shooting star
They are afraid of me
When I ride
I am not a slave

The forest flames with talk of the blacks in Saint-Domingue

They think if they take my horse the earth will abandon me and I will no longer hear trees